Robinson joins SPI as director of training

Austin, TX (Feb. 22, 2010) – David Robinson has been named director of training for Strategic Partnerships, Inc. (SPI), an Austin-based national research and procurement consulting firm. Robinson has developed training through such venues as classroom instruction, podcasts and webinars.

Robinson brings to SPI training expertise in classrooms, through distance learning and eLearning. He also is experienced in curriculum and course design and training for partners and sales staff.

Before joining SPI, Robinson spent nine years as senior education manager for a major software development company, where he managed the training program for partners, sales and other internal groups and was the designer of training courses for instructor-led courses and Web-based training. Prior to that, he was training programs manager for a performance improvement company for seven years, providing technical training and instructor immersion training.

Robinson holds a bachelor's degree in accounting and business law from George Mason University. He is also a veteran of the United States Navy.

About Strategic Partnerships, Inc.:

SPI (www.spartnerships.com) is a government procurement and national research firm founded in 1994 in Austin, Texas. Its staff of consultants, researchers and budget analysts are all former government executives who work in the area of government procurement.
